The Rejections

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1 to 23, 25 to 29, 31 to 34, 37, 38, 40 to 43 and 45 to 51 are rejected under 35

U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over John et al (Journal of Lightwave Tech).

The John et al reference teaches a method of making and a 3-D photonic crystal. On a substrate, two layers of the 3-D photonic crystal are placed. Spherical voids are created in both layers. The voids are of similar sizes in both layers. The structure has a diamond unit cell. The voids in the layers are formed so that the combination of the two layers of the voids creates the 3-D photonic crystal, note figure 1 and pages 1934 and 1935. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the formation along the imaginary bonds. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentations the optimum, operable means to orientate the 3-D photonic crystal in the John et al reference in order to create the desired optical properties as the reference does teach different orientation create different 3-D photonic crystal.

Claims 24, 30, 35, 36, 39 and 44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over John et al.

The John et al reference is relied on for the same reasons as stated, supra, and differs from the instant claims in the means to create the voids and determining the voids.

However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentations the optimum, operable means to create voids and determine the second voids in the John et al reference in order to produce a uniform voids creating uniform bandgaps.
